DiscussIT Topic 6: Where is our country headed?

Discuss IT Topic: Over the last week, our country has had growing concerns on immigration bans, border safety, and executive orders that remind us of issues that have been plaguing our country for years. Now that Trump has been elected President, there has been people threatening to blow up the White House, human right protests, and a plethora of other sensitive subject matters that are very compelling to individual groups of people. Why have these issues come up now as we head into a time in which it seems no one is going to be happy with the outcomes? Will this create a split in this country and place citizens against one another when it comes to their views? In your opinion, what other topics are at the forefront of concern? Explain.

Response: Please make sure all grammar, spelling, indentation, and punctuation is correct.

These issues have come up now because social media has made a huge impact on society, causing many people to know what is happening quicker than a few decades ago. Society has allowed more people to speak their opinions more freely. This is why these issues have come up now more recently, and since Trump has many ideas that not everyone is going to be happy with. I believe that this country has always been split. The U.S. was always separated by two main parties, democratic and republican which both had different views. So, it is likely that Donald Trump's choices and laws may put citizens against each other. Another topic of concern, in my opinion, is the creation or resurgence of extreme left-wing groups that create chaos and destruction. They do this by depicting themselves as something they are not, such as claiming that they are protesting peacefully, and instead they entice vandalism and hatred.
